When You'll Get Your Refund

Airbnb Help Center, detailed summary - October 23, 2026

1. Overview

When a guest is eligible for a refund on a home stay, service or experience, Airbnb starts the refund as soon as the reservation is cancelled. How long the money takes to arrive depends on the bank or financial institution, how and when the guest paid, and where the guest lives. Refunds go back to the payment method used for the booking.

2. Typical timelines by payment method

3. Tracking a refund

1. Open Trips, choose the reservation, and select Track refund; or
2. Go to Menu, Account settings, Payments, then Manage payments under Your payments.
3. Select the payment transaction to see its Refund status.

4. If the refund has not arrived

- Wait for the timeline above to pass, then contact your bank.
- Give the bank the Acquirer Reference Number (ARN) shown in Refund status. It lets the bank trace the refund.
- If the original card or account was closed, the refund will not process. Ask your bank to locate it; they may move it to your new card or account, or send a cheque. Airbnb can supply a reference number for the bank on request.

Very small refunds (under 0.01 USD or equivalent, often a currency conversion artefact) cannot be paid out.
